Reading and Critical Thinking — Exercise A (Answers)

Q1. Reflect on the lasting legacy of Rasoolullah (PBUH) as mentioned in the text. How does his life and mission continue to inspire people across different cultures and societies today?

• The lasting legacy of Rasoolullah (PBUH) is his exemplary character, leadership, and the foundation of a just, inclusive, and compassionate society. The text states that his life "continues to inspire and guide humanity, transcending all barriers of time, place, and culture — a shining example of moral excellence for all of mankind."

• His life inspires people today because his principles are universal: justice (Hilf al-Fudul, Charter of Madinah), mercy (general amnesty at the Conquest of Makkah), and equality (Farewell Sermon). These values apply to every culture and society, not only to the Arabs of the 7th century.

• Leaders today can learn from his model of governance based on civic equality, religious freedom, and the rule of law, while ordinary people can learn from his patience, honesty, and resilience in the face of persecution.

Q2. What was the importance of Rasoolullah's (PBUH) involvement in Hilf al-Fudul? How does this event show his commitment to justice?

• Hilf al-Fudul was a pact formed by the tribes of Makkah to defend the oppressed and uphold justice. Rasoolullah (PBUH) participated in it in his early adulthood, before the first revelation.

• Its importance lies in the fact that his commitment to justice was not limited to his prophetic mission; it was part of his character from youth. He later said that even after the advent of Islam, he would still honour such a cause.

• The event shows that he stood for justice even when there was no religious duty to do so, proving that his justice was a matter of conscience, not merely of office.

Q3. How did Hazrat Khadijah (RA) support Rasoolullah (PBUH) both emotionally and financially? Why was her support crucial during the early years of his mission?

• Emotionally, Hazrat Khadijah (RA) stood beside Rasoolullah (PBUH) as his first supporter, believing in him when the whole society opposed him. Their union was built on mutual respect and affection.

• Financially, she had inherited her father's prosperous trade and managed it with great success. She spent her wealth in the cause of Islam during the hardest early years.

• Her support was crucial because the early years of the mission were marked by persecution, economic boycotts, and social ostracism. Without her belief and resources, the small Muslim community would have found it far harder to survive.

Q4. What was the Charter of Madinah and how did it create a new system of governance that promoted fairness and equality?

• The Charter of Madinah was crafted under the guidance of Rasoolullah (PBUH) after the Hijrah. It introduced principles of governance rooted in civic equality, religious freedom, and the rule of law.

• It united diverse communities, guaranteeing protection for all citizens regardless of faith or ethnicity — a revolutionary model of coexistence and justice in its time.

• It created a new system because it replaced tribal law and privilege with a single order in which all citizens had equal protection and rights.

Q5. Why was the Hijrah (migration) from Makkah to Madinah so important for the growth of Islam? How did it change the course of history?

• As oppression in Makkah grew unbearable, Rasoolullah (PBUH) was divinely commanded to migrate to Madinah. The Hijrah was a decisive turning point in Islamic history.

• In Madinah, the first Islamic society was established. The Muslims changed from a persecuted minority into a free community with its own state, laws, and institutions.

• It changed the course of history because the Charter of Madinah provided the legal and social framework on which the Islamic state was built, leading to the later victories, the Conquest of Makkah, and the spread of Islam across the Arabian Peninsula.

Q6. Why do you think the writer focuses on values like mercy, justice, and equality in Rasoolullah's (PBUH) life? What might be the writer's intention or point of view behind selecting these aspects?

• The writer focuses on mercy (general amnesty), justice (Hilf al-Fudul, Charter of Madinah), and equality (Farewell Sermon) because these are the values that made the mission transformative.

• The writer's intention is to present Rasoolullah (PBUH) not only as a religious figure but as a moral and social model for leaders and communities across time.

• By selecting these aspects, the writer shows that the mission was about building a just society, not merely about spreading a faith.

Q7. In his final sermon, Rasoolullah (PBUH) spoke about the core tenets of Islam. How can his message be understood as a universal call for justice, equality, and moral integrity?

• In the Farewell Sermon, Rasoolullah (PBUH) proclaimed: "O people! Your Lord is One and your father (Adam) is one. An Arab has no superiority over a non-Arab... except through piety and righteous action."

• This is a universal call because it rejects all distinctions of race, colour, nationality, and social status. It declares that human dignity is equal for all mankind.

• It is a call for justice and moral integrity because it makes piety and righteous action — not birth or power — the only measure of a person's worth. This message applies to every society in every age.

Q8. Describe the significance of the Conquest of Makkah. How did Rasoolullah's (PBUH) decision to declare general amnesty demonstrate his magnanimity and vision for a unified society?

• The Conquest of Makkah in 8 AH was astonishingly bloodless. It marked not just the political liberation of Makkah but a spiritual awakening across Arabia.

• Rasoolullah (PBUH) declared a general amnesty, forgiving even those who had persecuted him. This demonstrated magnanimity because he chose forgiveness over vengeance when he had the power to take revenge.

• His vision for a unified society is shown by the fact that mercy transformed hearts and united the people of Makkah with the Muslim community instead of leaving them as defeated enemies.

Exercise D — Denotative vs Connotative Meaning (Answers)

• 1. "The Muslims undertook a long migration to escape oppression." — Denotative. "Migration" is used in its literal sense of moving from one place to another. No emotional or symbolic meaning is added.

• 2. "The world was covered in darkness before the message of Islam." — Connotative. "Darkness" does not mean literal night; it suggests ignorance, moral decay, and spiritual confusion. The word carries the association of a world without guidance.

• 3. "The message brought unity to tribes that had long been at war." — Denotative. "Unity" is used literally — the tribes were actually united. The meaning is straightforward.

• 4. "Justice was one of the core values taught in the Charter of Madinah." — Denotative. "Justice" refers to the actual legal principle of fairness in the Charter.

• 5. "The first revelation changed the course of history." — Connotative. "Changed the course of history" is an idiomatic expression suggesting a dramatic, far-reaching transformation — more than a literal change of direction. It carries the feeling of a turning point.

Writing Tasks — Model Answers

A. Explanatory Essay (250–300 words): Key Teachings of the Farewell Sermon

• Introduction (about 50 words): In 10 AH, Rasoolullah (PBUH) performed Hajjat-ul-Wida and delivered his final sermon on the plain of Arafat. It encapsulated the ethical core of Islam and affirmed universal human dignity.

• Body (about 150–180 words): The first core message is the oneness of mankind: "Your Lord is One and your father (Adam) is one." This rejects all racial and national pride. The second message is equality: "An Arab has no superiority over a non-Arab... except through piety and righteous action." Colour, language, and birth do not make one person superior to another. The third message is human dignity and moral integrity: a person's worth depends on piety and righteous action, not on wealth or status.

• Conclusion (about 50–70 words): The Farewell Sermon remains relevant today because it condemns racism, discrimination, and injustice. It guides individuals to treat all human beings with dignity and societies to build justice on the basis of piety and righteous action rather than power and prejudice.

B. Biographical Sketch (200–250 words): Hazrat Khadijah (RA)

• Introduction: Hazrat Khadijah (RA) was the first wife of Rasoolullah (PBUH) and the first supporter of Islam. She was a woman of outstanding virtue, intellect, and business acumen.

• Life and character: She had inherited her father's prosperous trade and managed it with great success. Impressed by the integrity of Rasoolullah (PBUH) in business dealings, she entrusted him with a trade expedition to Syria and later proposed marriage through his family. Their union was built on mutual respect and affection.

• Support to Islam: Hazrat Khadijah (RA) stood beside Rasoolullah (PBUH) as his first supporter, providing emotional and financial support during the most challenging early years of his divine mission. Her belief gave him confidence, and her wealth was spent in the cause of Islam when the Muslim community faced persecution, boycotts, and ostracism.

• Conclusion: Hazrat Khadijah (RA) remains a model of loyalty, wisdom, and sacrifice. Her exceptional support in the most difficult years of Islam earned her a unique place in Islamic history.
