Unit 2: Responsibility of the Youth in Nation-Building

Complete exercise solutions — all textbook questions answered (full book, 14 units)

Reading and Critical Thinking — Exercise A (Answers)

Q1. How does Quaid-e-Azam describe the transformation that came with the independence of Pakistan? Why does he stress the importance of understanding its implications?

• Quaid-e-Azam describes independence as a revolutionary change: "We have broken the shackles of slavery; we are now a free people. Our State is our own State. Our Government is our own Government, of the people, responsible to the people of the State and working for the good of the State."

• He stresses understanding its implications because freedom brings responsibility. Students must realise that they now live in a sovereign state and that the nation needs their constructive service, not merely celebration.

• He warns that freedom does not mean licence; the youth must work as a united and disciplined nation.

Q2. Discuss the contrast he draws between the militant spirit of pre-independence days and the constructive spirit required in a sovereign state. Why is the latter more challenging?

• The militant spirit was needed during the struggle for freedom — fighting, protesting, and going to jail. The constructive spirit is needed now — building, studying, and serving the state.

• Construction is more challenging because "it is far more difficult to construct than to have a militant spirit for the attainment of freedom. It is easier to go to jail or fight for freedom than to run a Government."

• Running a state requires daily discipline, patience, and hard work from every citizen, whereas the struggle for freedom was a temporary phase.

Q3. Discuss how two of the speaker's main ideas — youth's responsibility and economic self-reliance — interact with one another. Use at least two textual references.

• Youth's responsibility: "Your main occupation should be... to devote your attention solely to your studies. It is only thus that you can equip yourselves for the battle of life that lies ahead of you."

• Economic self-reliance: "There is no shame in doing manual work and labour. There is an immense scope in technical education... You can learn Banking, commerce, trade, law, etc."

• The two ideas interact because a responsible youth will not depend on the State for a Government job but will create opportunities for himself and others. The example of the young banker (Rs. 200 to Rs. 1,500 in four years) proves that self-reliance serves both the individual and the nation.

Q4. Explain the significance of the speaker's criticism of the colonial education system. What mindset did it create among students?

• Quaid-e-Azam says the old system aimed only to produce "well-trained, well-equipped clerks." It created "a mentality, a psychology, and a state of mind that an average man, when he passed his B.A. or M.A. was to look for some job in Government."

• The result was that an M.A. earned less than a taxi driver, and most Government servants lived more miserably than menial servants.

• The significance of the criticism is that Jinnah wants students to get out of this rut because a nation cannot progress if its educated youth only chase clerical jobs.

Q5. Why does Quaid-e-Azam discourage the pursuit of government service as the sole ambition of graduates? What problems does he foresee with this trend?

• Government cannot absorb thousands. In the competition for Government service, most graduates will be demoralised, and the rest, being disgruntled, will be ready to be exploited by persons who have their own axes to grind.

• He also warns against remaining in a "circle of clerkship" in dingy and uncomfortable conditions, which brings neither happiness nor prosperity.

• Instead, students should divert their attention to commerce, industry, banking, trade, law, and technical education.

Q6. What does Quaid-e-Azam mean when he says that "freedom does not mean licence"? Explain in your own words.

• It means independence does not give anyone the right to behave just as he pleases, regardless of the interests of other people or of the State.

• Freedom means responsibility. A great responsibility rests on every citizen, and now more than ever the nation must work as a united and disciplined nation.

• The shackles of slavery are broken, but the discipline of duty and service must replace them.

Q7. How does the idea of responsible citizenship connect with the idea of self-reliance and career diversification? Discuss how Quaid-e-Azam develops both ideas throughout his speech.

• Responsible citizenship is introduced when Jinnah says students must understand the implications of independence and serve the State honestly and selflessly.

• Self-reliance is developed through the criticism of the Government-job mentality and the call to enter banking, commerce, trade, law, and technical education.

• The two ideas connect because a responsible citizen serves the nation not by depending on it for a job, but by creating opportunities and strengthening the economy. The banker's example shows both ideas working together.

Q8. Track the development of the speaker's argument about government jobs and their impact on the mindset of the youth. How does this idea evolve and support the broader message about nation-building?

• The argument begins with the criticism of the colonial system that produced clerks, then shows the result (an M.A. earning less than a taxi driver), then warns of the consequences (demoralisation and exploitation), and finally offers the solution (commerce, industry, technical education).

• This development supports the broader message because it shows that nation-building requires a change of mindset — from dependence to self-reliance, and from clerical thinking to constructive action.

Studysapiens.com

Exercise B — Choose the Correct Option (Answer Key)

No.	Question	Answer
1	Why does Quaid-e-Azam begin by clarifying the informal nature of his speech?	c) to connect with the students on a personal level
2	What does Quaid-e-Azam identify as a major outcome of gaining independence?	c) a free government responsible to its people
3	What warning does Quaid-e-Azam give about the misuse of freedom?	c) It should not be mistaken for lawlessness
4	How does Quaid-e-Azam describe the early days of Pakistan?	c) challenging but full of hope
5	Which historical event does Quaid-e-Azam reference to highlight Pakistan's struggle?	b) the Punjab and Delhi riots (holocaust)
6	Why does Quaid-e-Azam stress the importance of students focusing on their studies?	b) to build a strong and self-reliant nation
7	What mentality does Quaid-e-Azam criticise in students seeking only government jobs?	b) It reflects colonial influence and limits opportunities
8	What alternative paths does Quaid-e-Azam encourage to consider?	c) manual work, trade, and technical fields
9	What example does Quaid-e-Azam give to support his message?	a) a young man with a banking background who left government service and succeeded in banking
10	What is the tone of Quaid-e-Azam's message to the students?	c) encouraging and visionary

Exercise C — Fill in the Blanks (Answers)

• 1. Quaid-e-Azam believed in promoting constructive efforts over mere protest or rebellion. 2. The students were encouraged to be realistic in choosing career paths beyond government service. 3. He warned against those who aim to exploit the youth for their own gain. 4. Pakistan's survival after partition was seen as a testimony of its people's resilience. 5. It is important to stay vigilant to the developments around the State.

Exercise D — Word Forms (Answers)

Base Word	Noun Form	Adjective Form	Adverb Form
serve	service	serving / servile	selflessly
construct	construction	constructive	constructively
responsible	responsibility	responsible	responsibly

Exercise E — Choose the Meaning of the Bold Word (Answers)

• 1. "...the graduating students" (laurels) — b) honours/rewards. 2. "...selfish individuals who seek personal gain" (selfish) — c) self-centred. 3. "the threshold of life" — d) entrance (the point where students enter the real world). 4. "constructing a nation" — a) creating. 5. "The upheaval caused by partition" — c) disruption.

Exercise F — Tenses (Answers)

• Passage verbs: "We have broken (present perfect) the shackles of slavery. We are (present simple) now a free people. Our Government is (present simple) our own Government, responsible to the people and working for the good of the State. We must work (modal + base verb) as a united and disciplined nation. We will overcome (simple future) our difficulties if we continue (present simple) with determination and dedication."

• Timeline: 1. Pakistan had faced (past perfect) massive refugee problems after independence. 2. We broke (past simple) free from colonial rule in 1947. 3. The youth must remain (modal) committed to building the nation. 4. Students are dedicating (present continuous) themselves to their studies. 5. The nation will thrive (future simple) if we work together.

• MCQs: 1. d) gains. 2. c) faces. 3. b) focusing. 4. b) will have established. 5. a) encouraged. 6. a) are enrolling. 7. a) work. 8. b) has stressed.

Writing Task — Model Answer

Argumentative Essay: "The Role of Education in Nation-Building"

• Introduction: In his Convocation Address at Dhaka University on 24 March 1948, Quaid-e-Azam Muhammad Ali Jinnah emphasised education as a key factor in shaping the future of Pakistan. He told the graduating students that their main occupation should be to devote attention solely to their studies.

• Claim: Education is essential for nation-building because it equips the youth with knowledge, discipline, and the ability to serve the State honestly and selflessly.

• Evidence: Jinnah said, "It is only thus that you can equip yourselves for the battle of life that lies ahead of you. Only thus will you be an asset and a source of strength and of pride to your State." He also warned against the colonial mentality of seeking only Government jobs and urged students to enter technical education, banking, commerce, and industry.

• Logical reasoning: Education fosters critical thinking, innovation, and responsibility. An educated youth can solve the great social and economic problems that confront the nation and enable it to reach its destined goal among the most progressive and strongest nations of the world.

• Conclusion: Education is integral to the progress and stability of any nation. In the context of Quaid-e-Azam's vision, an educated and self-reliant youth is the foundation on which Pakistan's future must be built.

Studysapiens.com