Coverage note: All official pre-reading, while-reading, comprehension, vocabulary, grammar, oral and writing activities are answered in textbook order. The final MCQs are original practice items and are labelled separately.

Pre-Reading and Text Overview

P1. Mention the condition of Arabia before Islam.

The text presents fifth- and sixth-century Arabia as a society facing moral and social chaos, ignorance, cruelty and injustice. Idol-worship and tribal divisions were widespread. At the same time, the Arabs possessed remarkable memory and eloquence, and poetry held an important place in their culture. A balanced answer should include both aspects rather than describing every person in the same way.

P2. How did Islam change the lives of the people?

Islam called people to the Oneness of Allah, the unity of mankind and a moral life based on justice and compassion. It challenged superstition and social evils, gave people a noble purpose and transformed both individual character and social relations. The Holy Prophet's (PBUH) example provided the practical model for this transformation.

P3. Who is the last Rasool of Allah?

The last Rasool of Allah is Hazrat Muhammad (PBUH). Muslims believe that he received and conveyed Allah's final message and that his life is a perfect model of guidance, mercy and noble character.

P4. How many religions do you know? Can you name a prominent figure associated with each?

Religion	Prominent figure / note
Islam	Hazrat Muhammad (PBUH), the final Prophet of Islam
Christianity	Jesus Christ, the central figure of Christianity
Judaism	Moses (Musa), a central prophet and lawgiver
Buddhism	Siddhartha Gautama, the Buddha
Sikhism	Guru Nanak, the founder and first Guru
Hinduism	A diverse religious tradition with no single historical founder

This is a factual comparison for cultural understanding. Different traditions describe these figures in their own ways, so respectful wording is important.

Concise overview of the unit

• The unit begins with Arabia's natural beauty and the Arabs' poetic memory, then explains the moral crisis of the fifth and sixth centuries. Hazrat Muhammad (PBUH) spent time in meditation in the cave of Hira, where Hazrat Jibril brought the first revelation. His mission proclaimed Tauheed and human unity.

• When pagan leaders pressed Hazrat Abu Talib to stop this message, the Holy Prophet (PBUH) answered with unwavering determination. The text closes with evidence of his historical influence, Hazrat Ayesha's description of his Quranic character, and Quran 33:45–46, which describes him as a witness, bearer of good news, warner, inviter to Allah and light-giving torch.

While-Reading: Margin Questions

W1. What kind of fair was held at Ukaz every year?

An annual fair for poetical competitions was held at Ukaz. It shows how highly poetry, memory and eloquence were valued in Arab culture.

W2. At what age did Hazrat Muhammad (PBUH) start spending time in solitude and meditation in the cave of Hira?

According to the unit, he was thirty-eight years of age when he began spending much of his time in solitude, remembrance and meditation in the cave of Hira.

W3. To whom did the pagan Arabs send a delegation in order to stop the Rasoolullah (PBUH) from preaching?

They sent a delegation to his kind and caring uncle, Hazrat Abu Talib, asking him either to restrain the Holy Prophet (PBUH) or to face their enmity.

W4. What did Michael H. Hart say about the Rasoolullah (PBUH)?

Hart credited him with Islam's theology and major ethical principles, an important role in spreading the faith and establishing its practices, and a driving role in the Arab conquests. On this basis, Hart ranked him as an exceptionally influential religious and political leader.

Reading and Critical Thinking

A. Answer the following questions.

1. How might the geographical description of Makkah Mukarramah influence the reader's understanding of its historical and cultural importance?

The deserts, dunes, tropical sun and starry sky create a vivid and dignified setting before the historical events are introduced. This imagery helps the reader imagine the land that shaped its people and their poetry. Locating Makkah about fifty miles from the Red Sea also grounds the account in a real place, making its later religious and historical importance more meaningful.

2. What does the emphasis on the Arabs' memory and eloquence suggest about their culture before Islam?

It suggests a rich oral culture in which poetry, recitation and precise expression were highly valued. People preserved and transmitted verse through memory, while public competitions rewarded linguistic skill. The observation also prepares the reader for the point that Arabic was a suitable language for preserving the final revelation.

3. What is the importance of the anecdote about Hammad and Caliph Walid bin Yazid?

Hammad's claim that he could recite one hundred long poems for every alphabet letter, excluding shorter pieces, gives concrete evidence of extraordinary memory and a vast poetic tradition. The anecdote supports the general statement with a memorable example rather than asking the reader to accept it without evidence.

4. What parallels can you draw between the state of civilization described here and other historical periods of decline and renewal?

Like other periods of decline, this age is portrayed as suffering injustice, moral confusion and weakening social order. Renewal begins when a compelling moral vision, courageous leadership and committed communities replace destructive norms. A suitable comparison is a society recovering from corruption or conflict when education, ethical leadership and just institutions restore trust. The parallel should be explained as a pattern, not as a claim that two historical situations are identical.

5. What challenges did the Rasoolullah (PBUH) face in proclaiming Tauheed and the unity of mankind?

His message threatened the authority and idol-worship of pagan leaders. They mounted pressure on him and his followers, demanded that he renounce his mission and sent a delegation to Hazrat Abu Talib. This placed his uncle in a dilemma and exposed the Holy Prophet (PBUH) to enmity. He responded with patience, dignity and absolute determination rather than abandoning the message.

6. In what ways did the Rasoolullah (PBUH) elevate mankind in both spiritual and worldly domains?

Spiritually, he proclaimed Allah's Oneness, divine guidance, moral accountability and a noble purpose in life. In worldly conduct, he modelled compassion, justice, self-discipline, courage and concern for human dignity. The resulting transformation changed individuals and society, while his leadership and the subsequent historical expansion of Islam increased his long-term influence.

7. How does Quran 33:45–46 encapsulate the role and mission of the Rasoolullah (PBUH)?

The verses gather his mission into connected roles: a witness to truth, a bearer of good news, a warner against wrong, an inviter to Allah by His permission, and a light-giving torch. Together, these images show guidance that reveals truth, offers hope, warns of harm and leads people from darkness towards faith and righteous action.

studysapiens.com

8. How does the author view the pre-Islamic Arabs? Give examples and evidence supporting your inference.

The author's view is balanced. He admires their memory, eloquence and poetry, citing the Ukaz fair and Hammad's extraordinary recitation. He also criticizes the wider condition of ignorance, wrong beliefs, cruelty and injustice that required reform. Thus the account neither idealizes every feature of pre-Islamic society nor dismisses its cultural achievements.

B. Reread paragraph 5 and identify the main idea and supporting details.

i. What is the main idea of paragraph 5?

The main idea is that the appointed moment of prophethood arrived when Hazrat Jibril brought the first Quranic revelation to Hazrat Muhammad (PBUH) in the cave of Hira, answering his deep concern for humanity and his desire to remove injustice and wrong belief.

ii. What details support this idea?

The paragraph describes his compassion, his urge to eradicate social evils, the arrival of Nabuwat, his presence in Hira and Hazrat Jibril's message. The quoted command to read, the reference to creation and the mention of the pen and knowledge directly illustrate the beginning of revelation.

C. Write an objective summary of the text.

Model objective summary

• The unit presents Hazrat Muhammad (PBUH) as the saviour and most influential guide of mankind. It first describes Arabia's landscape and the Arabs' oral-poetic abilities, then identifies the moral disorder of the fifth and sixth centuries. In the cave of Hira, Hazrat Jibril conveyed the first revelation, beginning a mission centred on Tauheed, knowledge and human unity. Despite pressure from pagan leaders through Hazrat Abu Talib, the Holy Prophet (PBUH) refused to abandon his mission and faced opposition with determination and dignity. The text attributes his far-reaching spiritual and social influence to divine guidance and noble character. It concludes with Hazrat Ayesha's statement that his character embodied the Quran and with Quranic descriptions of him as a witness, bearer of good news, warner and light-giving guide.

Vocabulary: Dictionary and Word Patterns

A–B. Dictionary information and comparison with contextual inferences.

Word	Pronunciation	Dictionary meaning in context	Part of speech imagination	/ɪˌmædʒɪˈneɪʃən/	the ability to form pictures or ideas in the mind	noun remarkable	/rɪˈmɑːkəbəl/	unusual or extraordinary in a way that deserves attention	adjective composed	/kəmˈpəʊzd/	in this text: created or written; past form of compose	verb (past/past participle)
preservation	/ˌprezəˈveɪʃən/	the act of keeping something safe or maintaining it	noun

Context check: “Composed” can also be an adjective meaning calm, but that is not its meaning in “composed by poets.” “Remarkable” means noteworthy, not merely strange. Dictionary definitions should therefore be compared with the sentence, not selected mechanically.

C. Find five words with prefixes and suffixes and use them in sentences.

Word	Word pattern	Model sentence
rewrite	re- + write (prefix)	Please rewrite the summary in fewer words.
unhappy	un- + happy (prefix)	He felt unhappy about the unfair decision.
teacher	teach + -er (suffix)	Our teacher explained the main idea clearly.
careful	care + -ful (suffix)	Be careful when choosing a dictionary definition.
quickly	quick + -ly (suffix)	She quickly identified the verb in the sentence.

A prefix is added before a base word; a suffix is added after it. Both can change meaning, grammatical function or both.

D. Complete the word-pattern chart for “advocate”.

Base word	Noun form	Verb form	Adjective form	Adverb form
advocate	advocate (person); advocacy (activity)	advocate	advocative	advocatively

Usage note: “Advocative” and “advocatively” are uncommon. Natural English often uses “supportive,” “relating to advocacy,” or “in support of” instead. “Advocacy” is usually the most useful related noun.

E. Write sentences using each form of “advocate”.

1. Advocate (noun): She is an advocate of equal educational opportunities.

2. Advocacy (noun): His advocacy helped the school establish a reading club.

3. Advocate (verb): Doctors advocate regular exercise and a balanced diet.

4. Advocative (adjective): The committee adopted an advocative stance towards literacy reforms.

5. Advocatively (adverb): He spoke advocatively about the need to protect public libraries.

The last two sentences demonstrate the requested forms; rewording them as “a stance supporting literacy reforms” and “spoke in support of public libraries” would sound more natural.

Grammar: Parts of Speech

A. Identify and label nouns, verbs and conjunctions.

Sentence	Noun(s)	Verb(s)	Conjunction / useful note
The quick brown fox jumps over the lazy dog.	fox, dog	jumps	No conjunction; “over” is a preposition.
After the storm, the sky was clear and bright.	storm, sky	was	and joins “clear” and “bright”.
She quickly finished her homework before dinner.	homework, dinner	finished	No conjunction; “before” is a preposition here.
Wow! That was an incredible match.	match	was	No conjunction; “Wow” is an interjection.

StudySapiens.com

Sentence	Noun(s)	Verb(s)	Conjunction / useful note
Because it was raining, they decided to stay indoors.	No common noun; it/they are pronouns	was raining, decided, stay	Because introduces the subordinate clause.

B. Write eight sentences demonstrating the requested parts of speech.

Target	Model sentence
Noun	The students presented their findings confidently.
Verb	They completed the reading task before noon.
Adjective	The diligent learner checked every answer.
Adverb	She explained the main idea clearly.
Pronoun	She shared her notes with the group.
Preposition	The dictionary is on the desk.
Conjunction	We stayed indoors because it was raining.
Interjection	Wow! Your presentation was excellent.

The target part of speech is bold. Other word classes naturally appear in the sentences as well.

C. Choose the correct adjectives.

i. Ashfaq Ahmad was a ___ writer. (famed / famous / famously / infamous)

(b) famous — an adjective meaning widely known and respected. “Famously” is an adverb, while “infamous” means famous for something bad. “Famed” is also an adjective, but “famous” is the intended natural option.

ii. This is a very ___ seminar. (information / informed / informative / informing)

(c) informative — the seminar provides useful information. The adjective modifies the noun “seminar”.

studysapiens.com

iii. My mother becomes ___ if I get home late. (anxiety / anxious / anxieties / anxiously)

(b) anxious — the linking verb “becomes” is completed by an adjective describing her state.

iv. It is ___ to get the correct information from the university office. (advisable / advisible / advising / advised)

(a) advisable — it means recommended or sensible. “Advisible” is not the correct spelling.

v. Who is ___ for this chaos? (responding / responsible / responsive / responded)

(b) responsible — the fixed phrase “responsible for” identifies who is accountable.

D. Fill in the blanks with the indicated parts of speech. Sample answers.

1. The cat is hiding under the bed. (preposition)

2. She finished her homework before dinner. (verb)

3. Wow! This is a beautiful dress. (interjection)

4. He is a very diligent student. (adjective)

5. She went to the store. (pronoun)

Oral Communication Skills

A. Model group presentation: main idea and supporting details.

Paragraphs 5–6: presentation script

• “Our group selected paragraphs 5 and 6. Their main idea is the beginning of the Holy Prophet’s (PBUH) mission through the first revelation. The supporting details are his compassion for humanity, his wish to remove wrong beliefs and injustice, the arrival of Hazrat Jibril in Hira, and the Quranic emphasis on reading, the pen and knowledge. Paragraph 6 adds that revelation continued for twenty-three years and that the message proclaimed Tauheed and the unity of mankind. We conclude that these paragraphs mark the transition from private preparation to public guidance.”

B. Respond to the text by telling short stories.

i. The first revelation in Hira — retelling

• Hazrat Muhammad (PBUH) used to withdraw to the quiet cave of Hira with food and water. There he spent days in remembrance and meditation, deeply concerned about ignorance and injustice. At the appointed time, Hazrat Jibril appeared and conveyed Allah's command to read in the name of the Lord who created humanity and taught through the pen. This event marked the beginning of revelation and of a mission that would call people towards knowledge, Tauheed and moral reform.

ii. Determination before the delegation

• Pagan leaders approached Hazrat Abu Talib and demanded that he stop his nephew's preaching. When Abu Talib explained their threat, the Holy Prophet (PBUH) replied that even if they placed the sun in one hand and the moon in the other, he would not abandon the proclamation of Allah's Oneness. His answer showed that principles cannot be exchanged for comfort or safety. Abu Talib, moved by this resolve, promised not to forsake him.

C. Attentive listening and oral response.

Short passage for reading aloud: Abdul Sattar Edhi

• Abdul Sattar Edhi devoted his life to serving people in need. Through tireless work and simple living, he helped develop shelters, ambulances and care centres. His example teaches that compassion becomes meaningful when it is turned into consistent action. He did not ask whether a suffering person was rich or poor; he responded to human need with dignity and practical help.

i(a). What emotions might a listener hear in an effective reader's voice?

A reader may express admiration when describing Edhi's service, compassion when mentioning suffering people, and conviction when presenting the lesson about action. These emotions should be conveyed naturally, not exaggerated.

i(b). How does clear pronunciation and intonation help understanding?

Clear consonants and correct word stress make each idea recognizable. Pauses separate sentences and clauses, while rising or falling pitch signals questions, emphasis and completion. Stressing phrases such as "consistent action" and "human need" directs attention to the central message.

ii–iii. Pair feedback and discussion checklist

• Listen first: Do not interrupt; note one strength and one specific improvement.

• Pronunciation: Check difficult names, endings and word stress.

• Delivery: Comment on pace, pause, volume, eye contact and expression.

• Respectful response: Say "I understood your point about …" before adding or questioning an idea.

• Revision: Repeat one sentence using the feedback, then thank your partner.

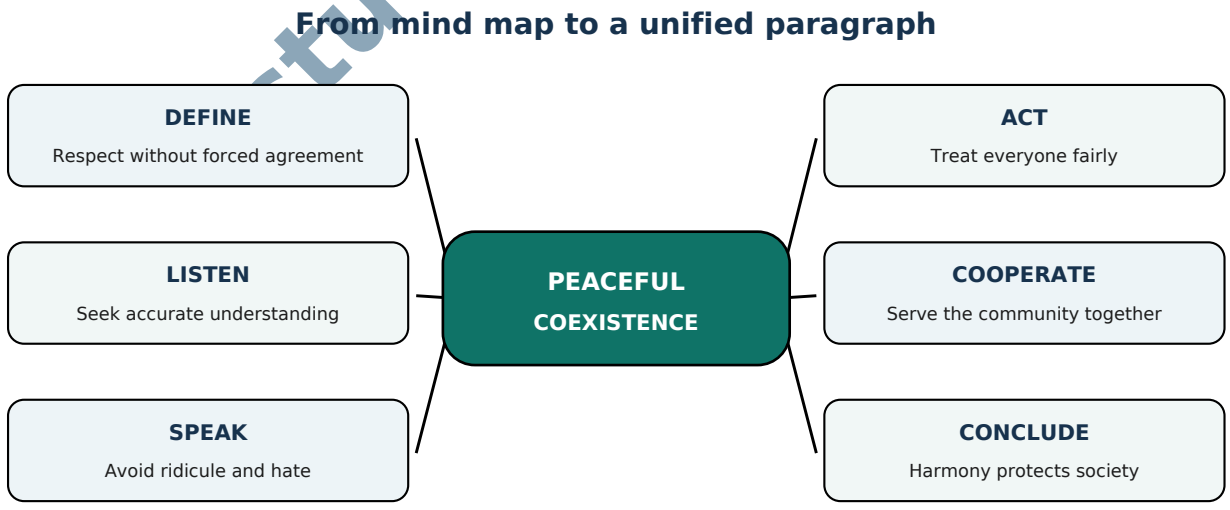

Writing Skills

A. Write a well-structured paragraph on “Tolerance and Religious Harmony”.

i–iii. Brainstorm → logical structure → mind map

Paragraph part	Planned content
Main idea	Tolerance and religious harmony allow people of different beliefs to live with dignity, cooperate and maintain peace.
Supporting detail 1	Respectful speech prevents insult and prejudice.
Supporting detail 2	Listening and dialogue correct misunderstanding.
Supporting detail 3	Fair laws and equal treatment protect every citizen.
Example	Neighbours of different faiths cooperate during examinations, floods or community cleanliness drives.
Conclusion	Tolerance does not require abandoning one’s beliefs; it requires justice, empathy and peaceful conduct.

Main idea in the centre → supporting details → examples → a clear concluding sentence

Model paragraph: Tolerance and Religious Harmony

• Tolerance and religious harmony are essential for a peaceful and productive society. Tolerance means treating people with dignity even when their beliefs or practices differ from our own; it does not require us to abandon our convictions. Religious harmony grows when we avoid insulting language, listen carefully and learn about others through respectful dialogue. Fair treatment is equally important because discrimination creates resentment and weakens trust. For example, neighbours of different faiths can cooperate in cleanliness campaigns, support affected families after a disaster and protect one another's places of worship. Such actions replace suspicion with friendship and make shared progress possible. Therefore, by combining empathy, justice and responsible speech, individuals can preserve their own values while building a community in which everyone lives safely and respectfully.

B. Write an informative/explanatory essay on "Peace and Tolerance".

studysapiens.com

Model essay: Peace and Tolerance

• Introduction

Peace is more than the absence of fighting; it is a condition in which people feel secure, respected and able to resolve differences without violence. Tolerance is one of the principal habits that makes such peace possible. It enables individuals and communities to disagree without humiliating or harming one another. In a diverse society, tolerance therefore supports both social harmony and human development.

• Understanding difference

People differ in religion, language, culture, opinion and experience. These differences can enrich society by introducing new ideas and ways of solving problems. Conflict often begins not from difference itself but from prejudice, misinformation and the belief that one's own group is always superior. A tolerant person listens before judging, checks claims before repeating them and recognizes the dignity of every human being. This attitude reduces the anger that turns small disagreements into lasting hostility.

• Practising tolerance

Tolerance must appear in action. At school, students can allow classmates to express reasoned views, refuse to mock accents or beliefs and settle disputes through discussion. At home and in public, fair rules, courteous speech and willingness to share responsibility create trust. Tolerance does not mean accepting cruelty or injustice. Peaceful opposition to wrongdoing is necessary, but it should use truth, lawful methods and respect rather than hatred. In this way, moral firmness and tolerance can exist together.

• Conclusion

A peaceful society is built through thousands of ordinary choices: a respectful reply, a careful fact-check, an offer of help or a refusal to spread a hateful message. Education strengthens these choices by teaching critical thinking and empathy. When people combine justice with patience and dialogue, diversity becomes a source of strength rather than division. Peace and tolerance are therefore not separate ideals; each sustains the other.

Points to Remember

Central idea: The message and character of Hazrat Muhammad (PBUH) brought spiritual and social transformation.

Text structure: Setting and culture → moral crisis → first revelation → opposition and resolve → historical influence → Quranic character and mission.

Main idea vs detail: The main idea states the central point; supporting details explain, prove or illustrate it.

Objective summary: Include essential ideas in your own words without personal opinion or minor detail.

Dictionary skill: Match pronunciation, meaning and part of speech to the actual context.

Word patterns: Prefixes and suffixes can alter meaning and grammatical function.

Parts of speech: Identify a word by its function in the sentence, not by its appearance alone.

Writing: A strong paragraph has a controlling idea, relevant support, unity and a purposeful conclusion.

How to attempt this unit in the paper

- For comprehension, answer the question directly first, then support it with one precise detail from the unit.
- For an inference, give both the judgement and its textual evidence.
- Do not include personal commentary in an objective summary.
- For word-class questions, check what the word does in that particular sentence.
- For essays, plan four parts: introduction, explanation, practical examples and conclusion.
